"Developed a fully responsive frontend website for a U.S.-based client using HTML, CSS, and JavaScript. The site was designed to adapt seamlessly across devices, ensuring a consistent user experience on mobile, tablet, and desktop screens. With a focus on clean design and efficient code, I created interactive elements to enhance user engagement, optimized loading times, and ensured cross-browser compatibility. This project allowed me to deepen my understanding of responsive design principles and refine my frontend development skills."

"Developed a fully responsive e-commerce clone website using React and Tailwind CSS, utilizing functional components for a clean, modular code structure. The site features a modern and intuitive design, with responsive layouts that ensure a seamless shopping experience across devices. Leveraging Tailwind CSS for rapid styling and customization, I was able to create a visually appealing interface while keeping the codebase efficient and maintainable. This project provided valuable experience in building scalable frontend applications and enhancing user experience through responsive design."

"Built a fully responsive Netflix clone, replicating the streaming platform's modern, user-friendly design and functionality. This project involved creating an engaging user interface that adapts seamlessly to various devices, ensuring a smooth viewing experience across screens. Key features include an interactive home page, movie/TV show categories, and visually appealing layouts. This clone provided a hands-on opportunity to work on responsive design principles and gain a deeper understanding of UI/UX best practices for video streaming platforms."
